High School

Hallowe'en Party

The Annual autumn initiation party of the High School was held last night in the school. As the freshmen came in they were quickly ushered to the basement where they awaited their turn. They were taken one by one through the initiation chambers and to may proudly boast that they are members of the A.H.S.

After the initiation ceremonies were completed the scene shifted to the main auditorium where games and contests were held until the Master of Ceremonies, Leroy Graham, announced that lunch was ready. During lunch we were entertained by one of our local yodellers.

Shortly after midnight the party quietly dispersed with each person going his or her separate way from a very enjoyable and successful initiation party.

$500,000 A Day

Every business day last year policyholders and beneficiaries of life insurance companies operating in Canada received over half-a-million dollars. Seventy-five per cent of this went to living persons.

There could be no more striking indication of the democratic character and far-reaching influence of this, the greatest co-operative business in the Dominion. It represents 3,500,000 men and women - half the adult population of the Dominion - half the electorate, federal and provincial.

Through their hard-earned savings, Canadian life insurance policyholder and beneficiaries have created an estate of over Six billion dollars and have assets invested in the Dominion of over Two billion dollars.

These funds, invested in bonds and mortgages in every province and municipality in Canada, promote national development, provide employment throughout the Dominion, help homes and farms, and bring business to the general store and country merchant.

The W.A. Supper and Amateur Hour

The chicken supper which was held in the Social Credit Hall last Friday evening was far more successful than anticipated. So much so that by 8 o'clock the ample supply of food was completely exhausted.

The Hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion in orange and black. The waitresses, Misses Joan Clifford, Eleanor Hill, Millicent and Hazel Taylor, were dressed in white with orange and black aprons and caps.

Following the supper, Major Edward Boves conducted an Amateur Hour in the Arrowwood School Auditorium. This, the first amateur show held in Arrowwood, was well attended by a large and appreciative audience.

Many local amateurs displayed their talent in various acts: Tap-dancers, yodellers, vocalists, ivory ticklers, instrumentalists, eleccionistas, and the Currie Quintuplets all passed in review before the Major, whose position was ably handled by Mr. A. S. Currie.

Brethren Church Notes

On Sunday morning, Nov. 8, Rev. W. E. Buntain's theme will be "The Experience of Pentecost." At the evening service, it will be "Behold the Man." We invite you to come and worship with us.

Last Sunday evening, twelve Young People from the First Irishmen Church, under the leadership of their pastor, Rev. B. H. Suttle, had charge of the evening service. Their program consisted of a short address on Missions, two violin numbers, a duet, a vocal solo and a reading. The main part of the program was a Missionary play.

The interest in the Bible School is growing. The afternoon sessions are both instructive and helpful. The enrollment in the evening class has climbed to 33.

Rev. Buntain announces that any new students wanting to begin next week will be given an opportunity to make up the back work by special class. This will also be true for those who have been unable to attend regularly.

Children's Topic: "A little fox that is always dirty"
Sermon Topic: "Moral Risks in a Gospel of Love"

The New Testament tells us repeatedly that love is the greatest power in the world to influence men and women towards goodness and righteousness but it also speaks quite frequently of judgement, retribution, eternal punishment and Hell. Can these two points of view be reconcilable or have we in rejecting belief in a material hell also rejected the thing for which these terms stand? And it is not the rejection of much of this teaching, partly responsible for a great deal of the immorality in the world to-day? And is it not time that men and women come to grips with this question upon which to a great extent our destiny depends? These questions will be dealt with next Sunday without prejudice or cant. Both old and young are cordially invited to attend.

The World of Wheat

By H.G.L. Strange, Director of "Crop Testing Plan" Searle Grain Co.

Wheat prices have bounded up. Why? Simply because the excess, or burdensome world's surplus, has disappeared, - it has been eaten up!

So a heavy burden that has been difficult and expensive to carry has at last been lifted from the backs of our Canadian farmers.

Before 1928 the world, with an average production and consumption of some 3,400 million bushels, usually carried over each year about 600 million bushels, but in 1928 many countries experienced an extraordinary yield to the acre, and so the year-end surplus suddenly and greatly increased.

More than this, during the years of depression, people ate less bread, all of which resulted in the usual 600 million bushels surplus growing by 1934 to the vast amount of 1,158 million.

Since 1934, however, several important wheat producing countries have suffered from very poor crops, and the world has actually produced less than it has consumed, and so the world's large burdensome surplus each year has been drawn (Continued on page 4)

The Wheat Problem

What to do about wheat is the greatest poser facing the Western Canadian farmer, not only for the immediate present, but for the long range future. Should he grow more, or should he grow less, or, perchance, should he forget about wheat and turn his attention to other crops and other activities?

It is safe to say that this problem causes more sleepless nights from the Western Canadian prairies than any other. It is probably not far from the truth to say that the question is uppermost in the mind of the average tiller of the soil the greater part of his waking hours and that during the night it perturbs his slumbers.

The farmer seeking the solution of the problem can get plenty of data which has a bearing on the subject and a plethora of advice without going far afield for it, but unfortunately for him and for the peace of mind so many complications are involved in the answer to the question and so many so diverse and contradictory are the replies that the greater his research, the greater must be his confusion and the farther he is away from a conclusive solution.

To solve the problem with even a remote degree of assurance, the investigator must not only be in possession of an immense amount of current available information but he must also be something of a prophet. He must be able to peer into the crystal of the future and divine what is ahead.

As there are no infallible methods of determining the ultimate factors of production and marketing he must make his guess as best he can and shape his course accordingly.

If he guesses right and successfully turn the gamut of early and late frosts, grasshoppers, wire worms, cutworms, thistles and other noxious weeds, windstorms and hail, rust and other blight and puts off a crop, he is faced with the possibility that it may be a drag on the market and that the reward of his labors may be little better than zero.

Added to all these and many other unrecorded uncertainties and handicaps are some new threat to the existence of cereal farming as it is practiced on the prairies in the form of grain produced on an intensive scale under factory conditions and without the use of soil as a medium, a method discovered by two Englishmen after four and a half years of research and now being tested on a commercial basis.

To quote a Magazine Digest summary of an article appearing in the Sunday Express of London, "The inventors claim that under their scheme which they call 'cabinet culture', one acre of floor space is equal to 1,760 acres of grass land; eighty-four bushels of seed will grow 200 hundredweight of green fodder; one crop of fodder can be produced per day instead of one per year; a farmer feeding intensively cultivated corn instead of hay and grass to his livestock will save $2.20 on every pig brought to bacon weight; $5 on every bullock; and from 15 to 20 per cent. on milk production because they will be eating young, fresh food instead of old or dried grass which has been weakened of its vitamins."

"The inside of the cabinet contains rows of trays, each one with corn in a different stage of growth. To-day's tray holds seed. Yesterday's shows the white shoots. The shoots are larger and larger up to the tenth day when the fodder is full grown and ready to be taken out and eaten."

"There is no soil. On top of the cabinet is a tank full of water containing a small proportion of a chemical solution. The chemicals are those of which the soil consists. Enough solution to last a month costs $3.75."

"In the bottom of the tank are small holes. For three minutes every 24 hours a tap is turned on and the tank drops 'rain' on to the top layer of trays. By the tenth day the growth can be lifted out of the tray like a grass-grown mat. The animals eat every scrap of it and the tray is left perfectly clean. There is no earth or dirt of any kind in the whole process."

"Animals fed on these intensive crops can be kept in yards or barns."

It is reported that already offers are being made to establish an agency and import some of these "factory farms" to Western Canada.

If the inventors' claims for this method of growing crops can be demonstrated as commercially feasible and economical no doubt the next step will be to improve the system to enable it to bring wheat to maturity, and if that can be done with success one wonders what will happen to the wide expanse of grain fields which constitute such a large section of the prairie provinces and what will happen to the investment in capital and labor which the farmers have sunk in hundreds of thousands of acres.

There is just one consolation for the prairie farmer and that is the fact that the scheme has not been proven a commercial possibility. Quod erat demonstrandum.

Man With Dual Brain

Can Do Two Entirely Different Things At Once

There is a man in Sydney, N.S.W., who can do two entirely different things at once, and do them well. He is Stirling Wilkinson, known to his friends as the man with the "dual brain."

Among other accomplishments, he can write different words and sentences simultaneously with both hands. He can write the same word backwards as he can also do two separate drawings at the same time.

As a bookkeeper he will be particularly envied as he can make simultaneous entries — the figures with one hand and the items with the other.

Wilkinson says that he was born that way. As a child, he found that he was writing backwards with his left hand to the discomfort of his teachers, who had to use a mirror to read his writing. Spectacles which he examined him, decided that he had a disease of the brain. To induce correct writing with the right hand, they strapped his left arm to his body.

When he entered college, he jealously guarded his secret. After a time, he committed some misdemeanor and was given 400 lines to write. By using both hands at once he completed the task in half the time taken by the other boys. The astonished master 'accused' him of having another boy to help him, and then Wilkinson had to prove his ability to do two things at once. After that his detention was double that of the other boys.

Cause Of Cataracts Unknown

Certain Food Extracts Said To Have Effect On Eye Malady

The cause of cataracts, which has baffled the medical world for centuries, was believed to be a step nearer solution with the discovery by Dr. Agnes Fay Morgan, chairman of the department of household science at the University of California, and Benjamin M. Cline, a graduate student, that certain food extracts have a material effect on the eye malady.

In a report to the society for experimental biology, Dr. Morgan said her experiments showed that presence of lactose or galactose in the intestine, and frequent gastrointestinal absorption difficulties associated with a deficiency of vitamin G offer a possible common attack on the problem.

"In lactose and low vitamin G diet tests, there was a hundred per cent. incidence of cataracts," the report said. "Likewise the lactose fed controls grew at about 60 per cent. of a group of cornstarch fed controls."

Dr. Morgan said the cause of cataracts is still unknown but that the determination of the cause has moved a step in advance in the possible future prevention of the disorder.

Home Improvement Plan

Unemployed Building Trades' Workers Can Look About For Work

The unemployed building trades' workers can now look about them, find homes in need of repairs, estimate the cost of making improvements and tell the owner how much money he needs and how he can get it. In the case of farmers, there is nothing to prevent them borrowing money to buy materials and doing the work themselves.

Under the regulations, money will be loaned on the basis of character and income. A farmer who can fulfill these requirements to the satisfaction of his bank manager will be in a position to borrow money for the purchase of materials no matter whether he does the work himself or hires labor to do it. While the home improvement plan is basically designed to provide employment, the purchase of materials by the farmer, even if he does the work himself, it is considered by the commission accomplish this purpose.

Long Patrol Ends

Ship That Guides Navigation Through Northern Channels, Completes Work For Season

The N. B. McLean, multi-ton ice-breaker which guides navigation through channels leading to Canada's most northerly seaport of Churchill, slipped quietly into harbor at Quebec recently, completing her seasonal patrol of the northern seas.

For almost three and a half months she plowed the Hudson Straits, guiding 15 vessels through the narrow, to and from the Manitoba port. During that time she saw one wreck; saw the freighter Avon River, disabled in a gale, washed aboard. The storm, last September, raged for three days and the McLean stood by the helpless grain carrier 48 hours before attempting to rescue the crew and later place them aboard the steamship Firby.

From remote points in the north, the McLean brought back eight wireless operators, stationed for a year at their lonely outposts.

She also brought back Gabriel Behant, 23-year-old boatsteward from the Charles L.D., stricken by appendicitis as the French freighter made her way up the straits. The French seaman was brought aboard the McLean, and Dr. Edmund Lisotte performed an emergency operation in his cabin.

The patient was reported recovered and it was expected he would leave shortly for France.

At lonely Sigukhar harbor, in the straits, the McLean put in to provide medical treatment for more than a score of Eskimos, stricken by influenza. Four of the group died before the vessel arrived, but Dr. Lisotte recovered recovery of the others after medical treatment.

Relief Running Wild

Town in Eastern Ontario Has Great Heavily Reduced

Provincial relief grants to the town of Hawkebury, in eastern Ontario, will be reduced nearly $4,500, because investigation of " Relief administration" had shown "another municipality squandering provincial funds on unneeded assistance," Welfare Minister Croll announced.

"The town seems to have been running wild in relief administration in the easy confidence we foot the bills," he said. "They're in for a jolt. Every mispent cent will be charged back to their own taxpayers."

Some relief recipients were driving their own cars, the minister said. An investigator found people operating their own businesses on relief, offering unfair competition to rivals. Investigators found a number of instances where people closed out bank accounts to go on relief.

In Memoriam

THOMPSON—In loving memory of Bobbie Thompson who passed on Nov. 5th, 1933. Three years have passed since that sad day. When I stood beside his bed, My heart was crushed and broken. When I saw that he was dead. Some may think I have forgotten. When at times they see me smile, But they little know the heartache, That the smile hides all the while. Sadly missed by his Father Mother, Sister and Brother.

upon until now it has completely disappeared. Not only is this the case, but as well there will be a shortage of wheat in August 1st next, only 400 million bushels in the world's cupboard for a carry-over, instead of the usual 800 million.

Just as the increasing surplus depressed prices from 1928 to 1934, so it seems have prices risen as the surplus in turn became less.

The following factors have appeared that have had the effect of pushing wheat prices up. Lack of rain in Australia—France is resuming wheat importations—The European rye crop is 6 per cent less than last year.

Factors depressing prices have been as follows—Large wheat shipments from Australia, Argentina, Danubian area, India and other countries—Seasonable weather for fall work in Europe—European demand for wheat declining—Favorable conditions in the United States winter wheat belt—Increased estimates Japanese rice and Chinese wheat crops.
